Public universities

Universidad de Buenos Aires.

Created in 1821, The University of Buenos Aires is one of the most important public further education institutions in Latin America. With more than 300,000 undergraduate and postgraduate students, the university is a national and international point of reference for teaching, professional training, investigation and academic extension. Its faculties have trained five Nobel Prize winners: Carlos Saavedra Lamas (Peace Prize, 1936), Bernardo Alberto Houssay (Medicine, 1947), Luis Federico Leloir (Chemistry, 1970), Adolfo Pérez Esquivel (Peace, 1980), and César Milstein (Medicine, 1984). Today, its community comprises 31,528 teachers and lecturers, 291,744 undergraduate students, 26,503 postgraduate students, 5,900 secondary school students, 15,000 non-teaching staff, 8,800 investigators, 2,300 scholarship students and 2,700 investigation projects.

It has 13 faculties, 5 institutions of secondary education with commercial, agricultural and technical orientations, 17 institutes of investigation of its own, and 37 shared with CONICET; 6 teaching hospitals, 14 museums, a cultural centre, ballet, cinema, radio station, choir and orchestra.

→ The Universidad de Buenos Aires offers a very extensive range of academic programmes, consisting of:

- > 97 undergraduate qualifications
(81 undergraduate degrees and 16 technical degrees).
- > 448 postgraduate qualifications.
- > 277 specialisations.
- > 131 masters.
- > 40 doctorates.

→ UBA International

The UBA works intensely to strengthen and consolidate the university's internationalisation, promoting academic, scientific and cultural exchanges on one side, and social and cultural integration within the university community on the other. In accordance with these goals, the International Relations Office has developed a comprehensive policy of internationalisation, implemented through diverse actions:

- > Social and cultural integration with international peers.
- > Cooperation through agreements in areas of common interest with other further education institutions that offer a high level of academic excellence.
- > Participation in international university fairs.
- > Reception of delegations from foreign universities.
- > Exchange programmes and promotion of the mobility of graduate and undergraduate students, academic staff and investigators among institutions in the region and beyond.
- > Assistance to foreign students, teachers and investigators.
- > Management of grants and international projects.
- > Academic Cooperation through the Franco-Argentine, German-Argentine and Argentine-Asia Pacific centres.

→ Exchange Programmes

Through agreements and associations with international universities, the Universidad de Buenos Aires participates in exchange programmes that permit students, teachers and investigators to undertake international academic stays.

→ Accepts free movers? Yes

International undergraduate students who wish to take subjects and/or undertake academic stays or courses in a period outside the framework of exchange programmes and/or agreements should contact the person responsible for international students at the corresponding faculty (see contact details).

The academic year consists of two semesters: March – July and August – December.

> Application dates:

CELU exam

What is it?

The Certificate in Spanish Language and Use (Certificado de Español Lengua y Uso – CELU) is an official qualification granted by a group of 35 Argentine universities and recognised by Argentina's Ministry of Education and Ministry of Foreign Relations and Culture.

How do I obtain the qualification?

The qualification is obtained through an examination that assesses speakers of Spanish as a foreign language in their ability to communicate orally and in writing within social, professional and academic contexts.

Levels

→ Intermediate level users can express themselves in oral and written Spanish with certain fluidity and naturalness in simple family, social and professional situations. The speaker can also begin undergraduate university courses. This level is comparable with level “B2” of the Common European Framework of Reference and “Intermediate Low” of the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages.

→ Advanced level users can express themselves comfortably, spontaneously, accurately and appropriately in oral and written Spanish in a wide range of social, professional and academic situations. This level is comparable with level “C1” of the Common European Framework of Reference and “Superior” of the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages.

Validity

The CELU qualification can be used as proof of Spanish language competency for academic institutions, and public and private companies. At an international level, the qualification is recognised by the governments of Brazil, China and Italy.

Work and travel in Buenos Aires

If you are a citizen of Australia, Denmark, France, Germany, Ireland, Norway or New Zealand, you can choose Argentina for a unique work and travel experience. Experience life in the passionate city of Buenos Aires and explore Argentina's incredible landscapes.

The visa

Argentina has international working holiday agreements with Australia, Denmark, France, Germany, Ireland, Norway and New Zealand, which allow young people aged up to 30 years to apply for a working holiday ("Vacaciones y Trabajo") visa. The visa grants holders permission to remain in Argentina for 12 months (with no extension) and to obtain an employee identification number in order to legally work in the country without the need for any further paperwork.

Requirements (other specific requirements may apply for citizens of each participating country).

Participants must:

- Be aged between 18 and 30 (for New Zealanders, the limit is 35).
- Travel unaccompanied, unless companions have a visa.
- Have not participated in the programme before.
- Have no criminal record.
- Demonstrate sufficient funds to cover the initial costs of their stay.
- Have a reservation for return travel to their country of origin, or prove sufficient funds to purchase said journey.
- Possess medical insurance covering hospitalisation and repatriation costs.
- Pay the corresponding consular fees for the visa.

Contact Argentina's consulate in your country to make an appointment and present the required paperwork.
